Abstract:

The invention relates to a process for the biotransformation of carotenoids using enzymes having cytochrome P450 monooxygenase activity; in particular monooxygenases from thermophilic bacteria, in particular of the genus Thermus sp.